

Tunnels and Bridges

During this workshop you will practice and refine the technique of building with clay using coils. Instead of sculpting a massive piece of clay, from the bottom-up we will construct walls of clay shaping nice structures.

The course is open to develop utilitarian (tableware) sculptural works, such as jars, tea pots with creative shapes and hollow handles or just sculptural hollow figures. You can see some examples in the pictures.

The process is based on my experience in South American ancient ceramics. Sacred figures with mazing designs were/are create where the natural boundary between an utilitarian and a figurative piece were erased. Mainly all of them, containers with human or animal features.

For many people, this course was a discovery, a new perspective, a new source of inspiration that refresh and improve their creative work.
